

MAY 1 1 1964

NEWSWEEK

THE PERISCOPE

Executive Wing

CPYRGHT

The Iron Curtain defector who made headlines recently by charging—with no proof—that U.S. military forces and intelligence overseas were infiltrated by Red agents is making an even more extravagant claim: the man (still under U.S. protective custody) says he's no Red—but the last of Russia's royal Romanovs.

WASHINGTON WIRE

Pentagon

CPYRGHT

How does Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara view his future? While refusing comment on political aspirations, he has confided to associates that he considers the first four or five years the most creative period in any job. After that, he thinks, a man should move on. McNamara became Defense Secretary in 1961.